GREEN BROWNFIELDS CONFERENCE

EPA is sponsoring a conference called "Innovative Concepts in Remediation for Successful Redevelopment", in cooperation with the Federal Environmental Agency of Germany. The conference will be March 19-23, 2000, in Salt Lake City, Utah and will cover innovative approaches to make redevelopment of brownfields sustainable and community based. The conference is aimed at all involved parties from current property owners through governmental officials, consultants, contractors, developers, lawyers, project managers and potential investors. Conference details can be found at <http://www.engfnd.org/0aa.html> or you can call 1-800-541-7016 and ask Donna Milone to fax you the conference information.

BROWNFIELDS TECHNOLOGY SUPPORT CENTER

The U.S. EPA has established a Brownfields Technology Support Center to provide expertise and information to help brownfields decision-makers determine whether innovative options are available and feasible for their sites. Information includes document reviews, technology scoping for site assessment and remediation technologies, technology descriptions, review of literature and electronic resources, and demonstration support. Support may be accessed through the web site at <http://www.brownfieldstsc.org/> or call (877) 838-7220.
